

BURLINGTON'S CARNIVAL.

THURSDAY ECLIPSES ALL PAST DAYS OF THE CARNIVAL.

Weather all that could be desired—Visitors Enjoy Themselves Hugely—Main Street Safe and Fast—Snow-shoe Procession and Concert.

A Japanese lantern and a stiff black hat, bobbing along together in a whirl of snow, were the sole objects visible, Thursday morning, at the hour when industrious Burlingtonians usually go to their offices down town. The gaily-striped lantern, swept by the wind, described a series of long parabolic leaps across the City Market square, and, narrowly escaping the bill-boards where Elder Sniffles and the Widow Bellott have been camping out during carnival week, found a convenient hole in the fence, through which it crept, and gratefully took refuge in the bosom of a snow-bank in the ravine. The black stiff hat, being somewhat more dignified and deliberate in its movements, was successfully pursued by a small boy in a badly frayed tunic, and ignominiously kicked into the gutter, where it landed wrong side up and began to fill with snow. The panting owner of the hat came up, and, as he picked his crushed and mutilated property from the ditch, he screamed after the departing urchin:

"Say! What did you do that for, you miserable little brat?"

The small boy pulled off his mitten, applied the spread fingers of his right hand derisively to his nose, and piped back against the strong south wind:

"You no business to wear them things carnival week, anyway. Pretty lookin' feller you be! Tilt yer girl to croo-shay yer a look!"

With this parting shot the little fellow proudly held aloft the tassel of his own head-gear, and bounded away after a bunch of carnival Fair Prizes.

The raw south wind held high carnival of its own throughout the city during the morning, and it was somewhat later than usual before the red, white, blue and variegated suits of the youths and maidens, dimes and dimes, who thronged the streets the previous evening came forth into the frosty air again. But when the scene of merriment did begin, it began with a vengeance; for everybody seemed to realize that the carnival was rapidly drawing to a close, and that only the two or three days devoted to the competitive sports remained. About the middle of the forenoon, the snow began to fall—slowly at first, and then faster and faster, until the air was one blinding cloud of flakes. The wind roared and whistled, and everybody was happy that it was just what every lover of the sports had been wishing for—snow enough to brush up the sleighing, improve the coasting, and give the snow-shoers a chance to display their skill on something besides the trodden earth and ice in the bay.

The coasting and tobogganing went merrily on in the midst of the storm, and the rosy cheeks of the girls only glowed more rosy as the flakes beat beneath the hoods of their toboggan suits and tingled on their noses. There were four starters in the mile race, W. Kerr of the Montreal, J. G. Ross of the Montreal, M. Scanlon of the Montreal, and H. M. Patterson of the Montreal. The race was a grand rush to the depot, for the 12:30 train was to bring in the Montreal clubs and a large delegation from the leading carnival city on the American continent. Naturally, Burlington wished to do and appear her best upon the arrival of the visitors from Montreal. The Iroquois Snow-shoe club, in their handsome suits, and the Coasting club in uniform, headed by the Sherman Military band received the distinguished guests of the carnival, as the long train rolled into the depot. By Jove, Jim," exclaimed one of the Snow-shoe club men, as a heavily laden travesty of a clown, in a white and blue suit, with a red nose and a white wig, and his English-looking companion admitted that it was "Very fair."

When the snow-shoe races began the crowd surged to the track in the bay, in front of the Central Vermont slips, and in a brief time the ice was black with people, while the front of the wharves was frescoed with humanity. The toboggan slides, however, were well patronized all the afternoon, the Russian slide at the Central wharf particularly being kept in full blast, in spite of the snow and wind. The going was a little "slow," however, owing to the snow. The grandest and most impressive feature of the day was the illumination in the evening and the great spectacular parade of the snow-shoe clubs and tobogganers. The storm ceased just before dark and everything was propitious. City Park, the square and all the streets along the line of march were fairly ablaze with fireworks and illuminations. The scenes in the park, with blazing rockets and roman candles, the colored fire, the electric lights and dancing globes were brilliant and magnificent beyond description. The delightful concert by the Montreal Snow-shoe club closed a day of rare attractions, and, in spite of the stormy weather, the most successful and memorable day of the week, thus far.

THE PROMENADE CONCERT.

A large assemblage congregated in the Association rink Thursday morning, on the occasion of the third promenade concert under the auspices of the Burlington Coasting club and the affair was most successful and enjoyable. It seemed to those who attended the three concerts that the band had reserved the best for the last. Suffice it to say the programme was one of the finest ever presented by a musical organization in this city and the liberal applause which the band received was richly deserved. The Sherms fairly outdid themselves in the excellent manner in which they executed the most difficult selections of the programme and their skillful playing was highly complimented by the visitors. A larger number than usual took part in the promenade, and the line of merry promenaders formed a pleasing picture, the gay costumes of the Coasting club members being set off in excellent shape by the dark clothing of those who did not belong to the club. The promenade concerts have been a source of much enjoyment to a large number of our guests, and were prominent features of the week's programme.

ICE YACHTING.

A large number of guests enjoyed ice yachting in the afternoon and although the track was heavy the wind blew at a snacking rate, making up for the heavy going. One of the yachts was overturned and its runner plank broken. No one was hurt, however. In the early afternoon most of the yachtsmen would not go out on account of the storm, but some of the visitors were so anxious to go out that they prevailed upon one or two to go out for a fee.

Owing to the storm the ice yacht race which was to have come off yesterday afternoon was postponed until this morning at 10 o'clock when it will take place over the same course provided the weather and wind are favorable.

The regatta committee and judges are requested to meet at the office of Ellis Lumsden this morning at 10:45 o'clock to make arrangements for the regatta. A number of the fastest yachts on the lake are entered for the race and it will be one of the most enjoyable features of the day.

SNOW-SHOE RACES.

The snow-shoe races came off on the track prepared for that purpose on the lake just north of the east half of the J. W. Hobart slide in the afternoon, and were witnessed by an immense throng. The races being a novelty in this vicinity a large number of townspeople were out to see them in spite of the severe storm which prevailed at that time. The members of the Montreal clubs represented by the contestants were also present in large numbers, and they manifested great enthusiasm over the races. The list of races covered the following distances: 100 yards, quarter mile, one mile, and two miles, and the prizes in each race were gold and silver medals.

All of the starters were from Montreal and the name of the club to which each contestant belonged is appended to his name in the following summaries. The 100 yards race came off first, there being six starters as follows: M. Wood of the Argyle, M. Scanlon of the Emerald, James Lumsden of the Emerald, J. S. Robertson of the St. George, W. Kerr of the Montreal, Duncan Stewart of the Montreal. In the first heat Stewart came in first, in 14 1/2 seconds, and Scanlon second. In the second heat Stewart and Robertson came in even in 14 seconds but the rules give precedence in a dead heat to the winner of the previous heat and the gold medal was awarded to Stewart, Robertson receiving the silver medal.

The next race was the two miles, in which there were two starters, R. Starke of the Montreal and James Lumsden of the Emerald. This was one of the closest races of the afternoon and elicited the greatest enthusiasm. It was won by Starke in 14:40 with Lumsden a good second.

In the quarter mile race, which came next, there were also two starters, William Kerr and J. G. Ross both of the Montreal. This was won by Ross in 1:15, with Kerr quite a distance to the rear.

It is the GREAT REMEDY for all Nervous Diseases, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Nervous Debility, Paralysis, Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Costiveness and Piles, Liver Complaint, all Kidney Troubles, Female Complaint, and all Diseases arising from an Impure State of the Blood.

It is a precious boon to that large class of persons who feel the need of a nerve tonic, an invigorant and a strengthening medicine, and yet wisely fear to take many of the nostrums which abound in the country. The Celery Compound is composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. They are Nature's remedies, and have long been known and used with great success by primitive people in all parts of the world. They are here brought together, their virtues fully extracted, and means known to science, and their skillful preparation, to produce a medicine which is not only a tonic, but a powerful remedy for all the ailments mentioned in its composition, and as not being a "make-shift" for alcoholic stimulants to be used by those who are weak, such a tonic under the name of "Celery Compound," on the other hand, to those who have contracted such a taste, Celery Compound is recommended to correct the taste of the stomach, stimulating and strengthening the nervous system, thereby satisfying the craving of appetite with that which does no harm, and if the same is persevered in will take away all desire for intoxicants.

We give you below the medical properties of the articles used in the manufacture of the CELERY COMPOUND taken from the United States Dispensary, and other standard Authorities.

UPULIN The active principle of Hops, is a tonic, moderately narcotic, highly recommended in nervous diseases, producing sleep and relieving pain, used in dyspepsia, restoring tone to the irritated and exhausted stomach, one of the best remedies for nervous tremors, weakness and delirium, allaying the pain of articular rheumatism, etc., etc.

BU-HU Increases the appetite, promotes digestion, favors the secretion of urine. Used in feeble digestion with flatulence, chronic rheumatism, cutaneous affections and dropsy.

DANDELION Tonic diuretic and aperient, having a specific action in cases of constipation of the liver associated with tonic dyspepsia and constipation.

SARSAPILLA Is a well-known blood purifier, and is mentioned in the Dispensary in connection with gout, rheumatism, skin diseases, constitutional syphilis, scrofulous affection, and other depraved conditions of health.

PIPSISSEWA Is a diuretic, tonic and astringent. Physicians of sound judgment have used it in cases of dropsy, and in cases of the glandular system, and as a cure for rheumatism, diseases of the kidneys, dropsy and disordered digestion.

MANDRAKE Like other active cathartics, Mandrake in removing constipation removes one of the causes of the disease, the condition which is generally spoken of as "torpor of the liver."

RHUBARB Is a tonic, cathartic, stomachic invigorating the digestion, rendering it more full in dyspepsia attended with constipation, biliousness, etc. The gentle action of rhubarb renders it one of the best remedies for constipation caused by cold or the presence of irritating ingesta in the stomach.

GENTIAN Is a pure and simple tonic bitter. It excites the appetite, invigorates digestion and stimulates the action of the stomach, and in all cases of indigestion, windy colic, and general weakness, it has for ages been strongly recommended by the most eminent practitioners as a very useful and beneficial remedy for periodical Sick Headache, dyspepsia, and all its kindred diseases. It is reported to cure neuralgia.

COCOA Is a tonic to brain workers and all who require a nerve tonic and stimulant which is free from unpleasant after-effects. It supplies material for body and brain; it gives tone and strength to the system; cures loss of manly vigor, and in all cases of indigestion, windy colic, and general weakness, it has for ages been strongly recommended by the most eminent practitioners as a very useful and beneficial remedy for periodical Sick Headache, dyspepsia, and all its kindred diseases. It is reported to cure neuralgia.

GINGER Is a stimulant and carminative given in dyspepsia, flatulent colic and the feeble state of the alimentary canal attendant upon chronic gout, muscular rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, imparting a warming and cordial operation upon the stomach.

CHAMOMILE Is a grateful anodyne, no, aromatic herb, imparting a pleasing degree of calmness to the stomach, and in all cases of indigestion, windy colic, and general weakness, it has for ages been strongly recommended by the most eminent practitioners as a very useful and beneficial remedy for periodical Sick Headache, dyspepsia, and all its kindred diseases. It is reported to cure neuralgia.

CANELLA Is a tonic, stimulant, stomachic tonic, increasing the appetite and improving digestion, and in all cases of indigestion, windy colic, and general weakness, it has for ages been strongly recommended by the most eminent practitioners as a very useful and beneficial remedy for periodical Sick Headache, dyspepsia, and all its kindred diseases.
